If Oakland, Cal., located as it is on the continental side of San Francisco Bay, compelled the Central Pacific, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and Western Pacific to make their railroad terminals in Oakland without any water transportation meeting said terminals, but with the vision in view that ultimately Oakland would afford water transporttion and make "Boat Meet Rail"

If Oakland and its suburbs grew in these years to 336,222 people up to 1920 with a manufacturing and shipbuilding business of millions in value
And if in 1920 the Parr Terminal shipping and warehousing located in Oakland in 1920 making "Boat meet Rail"

If "Boat meet Rail in 1920" brought to Oakland sixty-five more industries than in 1919 with Eleven million capital investment,

With Seven million dollars annual pay roll;

With Four thousand additional workers;

Bought over Five million square feet of industrial sites;

Paid over $750,000 for sites at the ridiculous average of only fifteen cents per square ft., cheapest manufacturing sites in America;

Shipyards, 1920 AFTER THE WAR, launched twenty-seven steel vessels, total 242,500 dead weight tons, valued $45,000,000;

With construction of grain elevators and warehouses and causing the establishment of the California Farm Bureau Federation, marking one of the most revolutionary and forward looking steps in the history of California Agriculture, centering the Agricultural trade to Oakland;

There would be few cities if there were no prosperous populated farming country;
1920 Oakland has tied itself to the California Agricultural and Farming interest of California;
1920 "Boat meet Rail" brought the automobile stage line terminal from all over California to Oakland, handling thousands of passengers daily;

If 1920 changed Oakland from where "Rail and Water meet" to where "Rail and Boat meet," affording a complete link of water, and rail transportation, has accomplished the above for Oakland in one year and caused the Manufacturing Giants of the East to locate in Oakland, and has awakened in the local citizenship the value of developing Oakland's 45 miles of water front. Ask yourself the question if there is any doubt about Oakland developing into a great business; manufacturing, warehouse and distributing city with its 336,222 population to start with.

Oakland, Cal., not only "Where Rail and Water meet," but

"OAKLAND WHERE RAIL MEETS BOAT"
"ANOTHER PORT OF CALL OF THE PACIFIC"

IF THERE IS anything wrong with your head, lungs, heart, stomach, liver kidneys, or any other part of the body, you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts, due to a pressure on the nerves at the point where they exit from the spinal cord.

It is a scientific fact that 95% of all inco-ordinations in the human body are caused by nerve pressure.

Constant practice makes perfect. An operator becomes skillful after years of practice.

Dr. W. H. Jordan is a graduate of several recognized Chiropractic Colleges and has a Certificate issued by the State Board of Medical Examiners, and has the endorsements of many of the best citizens of Oakland, who have become satisfied patients.

Chiropractic adjustments will remove the cause of disease.

"Where Does the Saving Come In?"

There is a direct saving in the use of Castle Gate coal, and it lies in the fact that Castle Gate coal produces more heat per ton—and heat, not tonnage, is what you pay for.

Six reasons why this coal produces more heat—

1. It is HIGH in carbon
2. It is LOW in sulphur
3. It is LOW in ash
4. It is LOW in moisture
5. It burns FREELY and EVENLY
6. It is UNIFORM — every pound the same every day in the year.

(Trade Mark)

Established 1898. 14 Years in Oakland

Does not run over the entire roof of the mouth; has three suctions instead of one; improves speech and taste; cools the mouth; prevents a flat hard mouth to fit in years to come, such as you will have with a cheap inferior old style plate. Look to your future. Don't pick the cheapest plate you can find, it doesn't pay. It makes no difference if you have any teeth of your own or not.

We believe in the majesty of Oakland's destiny; in the vastness of her power to grow. Without a peer she stands—the logical link between Occident and Orient. INTRODUCTION

The Polk-Husted Directory Co., publishers of the Oakland City Directory, present the 1921 edition of that publication to its patrons and users with full confidence that it will not fail to satisfy the most critical.

Especial care has been exercised to secure a thorough enumeration of the residents of the city and all its manifold business interests. The work presents as complete and comprehensive a directory as it is possible to produce, having in view the vast volume of information and statistical data assembled for compilation. In the accomplishment of this task the publishers have utilized their complete organization and efficient methods and the directory represents an achievement in production on a par with other metropolitan directories. The directory is devoted to the advancement of all of the city's vital interests and has in each issue kept pace with its progress.

We are indebted to the Oakland Chamber of Commerce for the following data, which has been especially prepared by Mr. Eugene Bowles, director of publicity.

THE MAINLAND OF SAN FRANCISCO BAY

A hundred years from now the traveler bound for Asia will ask for a stop-over at Oakland, and as he looks down from the dirigible observation platform—for they will all be flying then—as the airship slows down for the airdome, the unique city of the world will meet his eye.

He will see a metropolis of varied and beautiful character—great industries flanking a harbor-front at which is tied up the shipping of the world; in the mid-section the business, commercial and financial center; on the foothills that run down to the sea the homes of a happy people—hustling manufacturing, cold-blooded business, contented firesides all comingled.

Outstanding will be the Pacific naval base—mayhap by that time transformed into a base for the warriors of the air, immense fighting planes and dirigibles that can swoop across the Pacific in hours to deal death to the enemy.

Just a beautiful dream, you say? Well, one Edward Bellamy once wrote a book called "Looking Backward." It was written less than a century ago. Look it over again and see if nearly all of the wonderful things he wrote about in that book have not come true today, with more wonders made into realities than he ever dreamed of.

Oakland has all the elements for the making of such a wonder city—and when one speaks of Oakland and its development, its sister cities must always be taken into consideration.

Along the shores of San Fancisco Bay cluster these "Seven Cities of the Mainland," as some call them. In reality they are all one big community with common interests and with a combined population of 315,940 (1920 census). These cities are:

Alameda, population 28,806; Albany, 2,426; Berkeley, 56,036; Emeryville, 2,390; Oakland, 216,261; Piedmont, 4,282; San Leandro, 5,703.

In the center is Oakland, which gained 65 new industries in 1920, adding 4,000 men and $7,000,000 to its payrolls and increasing industrial investments by $9,000,000. It is the Alameda County seat and the third largest city in California, scoring a 44 per cent growth in the 1910-1920 decade.

The United States census shows that it was among the ten fastest growing cities in the country in 1910-20 decade, and the same census figures show that an east and west line drawn in the neighborhood of the city hall equally divides the population of the Pacific Coast, 2,783,000 people living on each side of the line.

The county as a whole has 344,177 people and in the outlying sections are a number of prosperous small cities, among them the following:

Hayward, population, 3,487; Pleasanton, 991; Livermore, 1,916.

The late John Hay, then secretary of State under President Roosevelt, called Oakland the "beauty spot of the world" when he visited the city in 1906. He had viewed it as one views Naples—from its heights—and like Naples, he saw it running down in verdant terraces to meet iridescent San Francisco Bay.

About 150 years previously the conquistadores viewed the same verdant terraces—"ups and downs," as they are quaintly described in the old Spanish documents—and the site of Oakland was discovered by white men.

What their emotions were history does not tell, but it does relate something of their yearnings. It seems that as his Spanish majesty's troops went marching over a field—"clank-clank, clankety-clank," for those were the days of the cuirass, the breast-plate and the arquebuss, the glisten and clangor of their "tin Bee-vee-dees" startled a bear from his midday nap. It was a fat bear, carefree and happy, for it lived in sunny California. The bear saw the conquistadores first and ran away—and so there were no bear steaks a la Espagne around the campfire that night. But it was a great chase while it lasted.

Right there the history of Oakland began being made, for the hungry hunters ran themselves out of breath over the "ups and downs" until they reached one of the up-pest "ups" and there for the first time in world's history white men's eyes looked through the Golden Gate.

That was on March 27, 1772, as it is all so meticulously detailed in the diaries of Father Juan Crespi and Lieutenant Pedro Fages, leaders of the churchly militant pioneers sent out by Don Gaspar de Portola to see what lay on the farther side of the "great estuary," as they called San Francisco Bay.

Scarcely more than a century later—merely a respiration in the existence of this age—old earth—that same cavalcade of Spanish braves would become a band of dumfounded poltroons could they retrace today the course of their bear chase. Stone ships that float, roaring engines that hurl sausage shaped things through the air at incredible speed, machines that project a whisper, enlarged seven times seven until it reverberates against the Contra Costa hills like the battlecry of Pizarro's hosts—such wonders, and hundreds more, would they see produced in the scores of manufacturing plants that crowd the path of their futile meat hunt.

Where in their day was a morass through which they foundered is now a great ship yard where men fashion vessels out of concrete. Over there was then a barren hillock topped by a lone scrubby oak: over there is now a great steel and glass factory turning out day and night Union dirigible engines for the navy's "blimps." Yonder was then a sweet scented thicket with grateful coolness, yonder is now a model plant where the thunderbolt has been tamed to carry sound-waves wherever and however man commands.

Don't you think those old Spanish explorers would be pop-eyed with wonder? Of course. You would yourself.

This quick spanning of the ancient with the modern is merely by way of emphasizing the importance to California and the whole Pacific Coast of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, Emeryville, Albany, Piedmont, San Leandro, Hayward—the cities on the mainland of San Francisco Bay—and their back country of Alameda County.

Industrially considered, the cities named above are now in the very forefront and are stepping rapidly ahead. It is not booster's hyperbole to say that here is perhaps the biggest industrial section, actually and potentially, west of the Missouri river.

Millions of dollars of manufacturing capital has come here in the last year to make still more millions for its owners and for Oakland. The leading manufacturers of electrical appliances will soon rear a great plant on the old Emeryville race track. One of the greatest packing corporations in the United States chose Oakland for what ultimately will be its largest cannery on the Pacific Coast. From far off Australia has come a great jam and marmalade factory, whose own international fame did not blind it to the fame of Oakland. A great milling plant has risen on the shores of the Inner Harbor. Two garment manufacturers of national reputation have established branches here and seriously consider transferring their main works to Oakland. The same applies to two large paint concerns.

All of these new manufacturers give two prime and important reasons for their moves—climatic conditions that make for 100 per cent efficiency all the year around and a class of labor that is unexcelled for intelligence and a liking for the job.

Surely no other section in the world can point so satisfied a finger at such a record. Certainly it is a matter of pride that Alameda County has a citizenry that is so steady, so dependable, so efficient that manufacturers all over America yearn to employ it.

Climate is the trite reason. Let us not harp on this subject, but let us dismiss it with the statement that we have that here which makes a man like his labor, that sends him in the evening back to a home environment which makes him feel like a man among men, and that makes of him a happy, contented, productive employe.

Oakland and its sister cities have spoken often and loudly, perhaps boastfully, of their great shipbuilding industry. During the war the whole world came to know and applaud the shipbuilding wonders here performed —the triple launchings, the quadruple launchings, the sextuple launchings, the punching records, the riveting records, the building of a 12,000 ton ship in 26 days when the U-boat was stabbing the world's water commerce from beneath. The shipbuilder was our most prominent citizen.

Now, comparisons are not odious, a well known authority to the contrary notwithstanding.

Turn to the pages of the 1910 census as compiled by the federal government and there you will find that altogether the manufacturing establishments of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley totaled 576. And now they total nearly 1,400.

Sixty-five of those came to Alameda County in 1921, representing a manufacturing investment of $11,000,000. That sum was 40 per cent of the total investment in factories here a short decade ago.

The New Industries Committee of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce took stock recently after its successful efforts in locating 60 new plants and these are the three principal conclusions the hustlers came to with regard to the reasons factory men like to put their plants on the continental side of San Francisco Bay:

FIRST—Recent favorable adjustment of freight rates from the East to the Pacific Coast, making it an advantage to manufacture here.

SECOND—Shorter haul to the markets of the Orient, which not only saves freight charges, but reduces the amount of exchange paid during the ocean trip—and that, by the way, is a big item in three days, when the American dollar has soared in value and the British pound has fallen to a record low figure.

THIRD—Climate advantage, which permits plants here to operate with 100 per cent efficiency the year around, as compared with 57 per cent efficiency in eastern states in the extreme cold of winter and the enervating heat of summer.

The committee also arrived at the opinion that, although the Pacific Coast was the last to feel the effects of the world war, it had been the first to "come back" in post-war activity and development.

The committee came to the further conclusion that with the increasing interest in trans-Pacific trade, eastern men of affairs had awakened to the fact that in Oakland they found the ideal arrangement for domestic and foreign commerce—ships alongside of wharves, where cargo can be slung from hold to boxcar for carriage to Cathay or California, or other coast destination.

Uncle Sam has recently finished counting up the industrial plants, their employes, their products and other facts that go to make up the official manufacturing census. Some of the facts that will be developed regarding the industrial section on the east side of the bay are:

That the population of the district had grown in ten years from 225,276 to 335,100, an increase of 48½ per cent.

That the industrial population, conservatively estimated at 55,000, showed an increase of 400 per cent in ten years.

That the industrial payroll totaled $60,000,000, as against $6,953,000 in 1919.

That manufacturing investment in a little more than four years amounted to $43,000,000.

You have read of the diverse possibilities of manufacturing in the Oakland district. As one goes down the list, it becomes remarkable, almost astounding, to note the numerous commodities that are produced, and produced better and at lower cost then elsewhere, their manufacturers declare.

Let us turn to that new product that is absorbing the attention of the keenest and most imaginative business men of the age—plain cocoanut.

In days gone by cocoanut was the joy of the childish heart. Shredded, it topped off the big layer cake mother used to bake, and don't you remember the delicious pudding it made.

Nowadays cocoanut meat is the joy of the big business man. To be sure, it still adorns the top of mother's layer cake and makes up the pudding filling, but only on festal occasions.

For under the name of copra, cocoanut has become one of the most valuable and most trafficked in the world's commodities. Some experts predict that copra will be the means of saving humanity from a butter famine, these same experts having figured out that the cows of the world are not "giving down" enough milk to provide the cream for the churns and that soon we will be eating imitation butter made from vegetable oils. And we'll like it, they say.

Before the present Herr Wilhelm Hohenzollern invented his unspeakable U-boat, copra was mostly known on the Pacific Coast through South Sea Island tales and an occasional tubby, greasy trading schooner that nosed up to a dock with a mondescript crew and a similar smell.

When the assassins of the sea began stabbing below the belt, ships naturally sought the lands of safety and the Pacific Coast came into its own in the copra traffic. The vile breath of the submarine was the ill wind that blew good ships and costly cargoes of copra and cocoanut oil to the Pacific seaboard of America. And the most of the product of the palmtrees of the atolls made its way to Oakland.

The result is that the copra and cocoanut oil industry has become of almost as great importance in the city as its shipyards—and they are famous the world over. Some experts account Oakland as the greatest of port of entry for such cargoes in the world. This new industry has grown amazingly here, due principally to the eveness of the climate. Absence of heat and cold extremes reduce storage and treatment costs to the minimum.

Now, Oakland shoud not be regarded as a single track city, with its objective solely an industrial one. There is the esthetic side and it is emphasized.

Its Skyline Boulevard is accounted by Baedeker's Guide Book for tourists as among the three most beautiful drives in the world, and the most beautiful in America.

Its Lake Merritt, the only salt water park in the world inside a city's limits, is famed around the globe as the winter haunt of wild ducks.

Its scenic beauty draws thither annually thousands of tourists from every quarter of the earth.

Its City Hall, a towering pile of granite 433 feet high, is accounted the most magnificent municipal building on the Pacific Coast, and its Municipal Auditorium is a model that other cities are following.

So it is that in Oakland one finds the rare and unusual combination of the esthetic and the hard, work-a-day business world.

"Beauty Spot of the World" is what the late John Hay, secretary of State, called Oakland. "Busiest Beauty Spot of the World," would probably be his paraphrase were he to revisit it.
